Walpole Author Launches Bellarmine Publishing to Share Unique Stories with the World

Boston, MA – Mark J. Resnick, author of Ten Days With Dad and The Greatest Burden The Greatest Blessing, has launched Bellarmino Publishing, LLC to help aspiring authors share their unique stories with the world.

Named in honor of the esteemed scholar and saint, St. Robert Bellarmine, Bellarmino Publishing's focus and mission is to serve as a dedicated partner in bringing their customer's literary dreams to life.

"Most aspiring authors believe the writing process is the hardest part—until they finish their first draft and say, 'okay, what's next?'" according to Resnick. "Our company is committed to removing the obstacles that often intimidate, and unfortunately, prevent authors from fulfilling their dream to become a published author."

According to WordsRated, the number of self-published books increased 264% between 2018 and 2023, with $1.25 billion worth of self-published books sold annually. Some novels, such as The Martian and Fifty Shades of Grey were both self-published books before becoming bestsellers and blockbuster movies.

Bellarmino Publishing provides comprehensive services that include writing, editing, formatting, cover design, coaching, and sales & marketing content and creation—all while ensuring that their authors maintain full control over their intellectual property. Bellarmine's hybrid publishing model combines the best of traditional publishing services with the flexibility and autonomy that modern authors crave.

"With Bellarmine Publishing, I didn't just get a publisher; I had a team of experts dedicated to my success. The journey from manuscript to market was daunting, but Mark's team offered me tailored support every step of the way." -J.C. McNaly

Beyond the essentials like editing, formatting, and design, Bellarmine also equips its authors with the tools they need to succeed after the book is published. From crafting compelling book launches and marketing content to developing effective sales strategies, Bellarmine's mission is to see their authors' work not only published but celebrated and shared with a wide audience.
